B.SC. (HOSPITALITY STUDIES)

Introduction

The Hotel Management program covers two full-time courses which offer an immersive experience in hotel, catering and other affiliated industries. This course prepares learners to take on any of the five core branches in hospitality – food production, food and beverage service, front office, in-room dining and housekeeping.

From a management perspective, we equip our learners to learn about human resources management, operations management, hospitality laws and managing information systems at the workplace.

Future Prospects

Learners from BSc in Hospitality Studies program will be skilled for all operational and supervisory roles in the five core areas of the hotel industry (and affiliate sectors). Learners will be able to take up operational and supervisory roles in areas related to food production and service. These would also include ventures where such positions lie outside the hospitality industry. Hospitality graduates can work as customer relations executives, kitchen managers, flight kitchen managers, executives in food chains, hospital catering etc.
